COURSE DESCRIPTION

This course provides a missional reading of the Old and New Testament to highlight the centrality of the theme of God's mission to the Bible's grand narrative and to develop a biblical theology of mission that emphasizes the proclamation of the whole gospel to the whole world. The course includes analysis of current issues in mission from a theological perspective.

COURSE OBJECTIVES

Through this course students will be able to:

- Describe the difference between using the Bible as a basis for mission and understanding the Bible in light of God's mission
- Articulate a theology of mission
- Describe guidelines for contextualizing the gospel
- Assess the influence of common concepts of hell and the atonement on mission and evaluate alternative concepts
- Articulate a holistic gospel that includes the biblical call to justice and peacemaking as modeled by Jesus and the prophets
- Describe various issues in cross-cultural mission and analyze them in light of biblical and theological perspectives

ASSIGNMENTS

Attendance, Reading and Class Participation - Significant class time will be given to the discussion of assigned readings. Therefore it is imperative that students read carefully and share their reflections and questions during class discussion. To get an “A” in this category you must have perfect attendance, give evidence of having done the reading, and make significant contributions to class discussion. An “A-“ will be given to those with one absence and significant participation or to those with perfect attendance and good participation. Two absences will place a student in the “B” range; participation and evidence of reading will determine whether it is a high or low “B.” Three absences could move the student in to the “C” range. Four or more absences place the student at risk of receiving an “F” in class participation, but also at risk of having their course grade lowered a full letter grade or of automatically failing the class. Students may talk to the professor about ways to partially make up for absences. Note that “significant participation” refers to quality of participation not just quantity.

Presentation on The Mission of God - Students will work with another student (or two) to give a presentation on a section of Wright’s book. Other students in the class will have read the book so the purpose is not simply to repeat the content in the book, but help the class process and engage the material. The presentation will have three parts: 1. diagrams, drama, or some other visual means of presenting the general flow and main points of the section; 2. implications for mission derived from the content of the section; 3. three to five questions that will provide the basis for class discussion and help others process the importance of the section. The presentation should be no longer than 20 minutes, and should include a handout with, at least, a listing of implications for mission and the discussion questions. Grading will be based on depth of understanding and engagement of the section content, discernment of what to include, and creativity and clarity which aid class understanding and processing of the material.

Group one, pp. 71-188, class two

Group two, pp. 189-288, class two

Group three, pp. 289-392, class two

Group four, pp. 393-530, class three

Reflection Paper on The Mission of God - Write a one page general response to the book reflecting on its importance for you. On a second page list key ideas you take from the book. The second page may be done in a bullet-point format. Due Feb. 5.

Guidelines for Contextualization - Based on your reading of Flemming and the New Testament write guidelines of how to appropriately contextual the gospel and other theological truths. No more than one page. Due Feb 26. (Because we will discuss this in class, if it is handed in late it will only receive half credit.)

Statement of Theology of Mission - Based on class discussion and your reading of Wright and Flemming, write a two-to-three sentence statement of your theology of mission and a two page (double-spaced) commentary/explanation. A Best draft is due by March 5th by 8:30 AM. (This is not a rough draft, but the best work you can do.) The professor will grade it and then discuss it with you. Make improvements based on that conversation and turn in the final draft (with a copy of the marked version of the best draft) on March 19th. (The best draft's grade will be 1/3 and the final draft's grade will be 2/3 of the grade for this project.)

Statement of the Gospel - Write a two page (double spaced) description of the gospel. This is not a presentation of the gospel to a non-Christian, but a theological statement of your understanding of the gospel. Among other themes, be sure to include salvation, justice, conversion, peace, and the cross and resurrection. A Best draft is due on April 2nd. The professor will grade it and then discuss it with you. Make improvements based on that conversation and turn in the final draft (with a copy of the marked version of the best draft) on April 9th. (The best draft's grade will be 1/3 and the final draft's grade will be 2/3 of the grade for this project.)

Research Paper - Chose a current issue in mission, such as: relating to other religions, church planting strategies, methods of evangelism, evangelism and truth in a postmodern setting, short term missions, partnership with churches and Christians in other regions, tentmaking/business as mission, money and mission, spiritual salvation as priority vs. holistic gospel, etc. Use the first half of the paper to describe the issue and to identify two or three main questions that people are asking about the issue. Then reflect on the issue through the lens of your statements of theology of mission and the gospel specifically and, generally, through a biblical theology of mission and evangelism. First offer a theological critique of the questions. Do they need to be changed? Are there other questions to be asked? Then seek to answer the revised questions from a theological perspective. Your research to describe the issue should, in addition to books and Internet research, include reading articles from missiological journals found through an ATLA search. List the articles you read in your bibliography. Seven to eight pages (single spaced), due April 16th. (If you select "partnership" or "money" your paper is due April 9th.)

Assignment policies:

1. Students are expected to submit assignments on time; if they are late they will be graded down one grade level (a B+ becomes a B), and after four days another grade level.
2. All written work should be single spaced, unless otherwise noted, have one inch margins and use Times Roman 12pt font.
3. Confidentiality: If you wish to have your assignment results be more confidential you may submit the assignments in an envelope.
4. All assignments may be printed on scrap paper.

Grading Scheme

Presentation 15%; reflection paper 5%; guidelines 5%; theology of mission 18%; gospel statement 17%; research paper 30%; attendance, reading and class participation 10%.

As stated in the Academic Handbook a “B” is the baseline grade. A “B” means the student is doing satisfactory work. The “B+” or higher grade indicates that the student has exceeded the baseline performance standard. The “C” grade indicates that the student has not achieved the baseline level. I will write a letter grade on your assignments. In my grade book each letter grade will be given a numerical equivalent (B+ = 3.33; A- = 3.67). At the end of the semester your numerical average will determine your final letter grade based on the following scale:

4.00 to 3.83 = A
3.82 to 3.5 = A-
3.49 to 3.17 = B+
3.16 to 2.83 = B etc.

Appendix

As you read McLaren’s book please keep a running log of questions, insights, and reflections. Then when you finish please look back over your notes and see what questions you can now answer, and which ones remain. Bring your notes to class for discussion together.
